Craft Distilling: Making Liquor Legally At Home

Synopsis

Many people have experienced great success making their own beer or wine at home. In recent years a number of hobbyists have become interested in making distilled spirits. However, distilled spirits are more complicated to produce, and the process presents unique safety issues. In addition, alcohol distillation without a license is illegal in most countries, including the United States and Canada. From mashing and fermenting to building a small column still, Craft Distilling is a complete guide to creating high-quality whiskey, rum and more at home. Experienced brewer, distiller, and self-reliance expert Victoria Redhed Miller shares a wealth of invaluable information including: Quality Spirits 101: Step-by-step recipes and techniques Legal Liquor: An overview of the licensing process in the United States and Canada Raising the Bar: Advocacy for fair regulations for hobby distillers This unique resource will show you everything you need to know to get started crafting top-quality spirits on a small scale and do it legally. Sure to appeal to hobbyists, homesteaders, self-sufficiency enthusiasts, and anyone who cares about fine food and drink, Craft Distilling is the ideal offering for independent spirits. Victoria Redhed Miller is a writer, photographer and homesteader who lives on a forty-acre off-grid farm in northwest Washington State with her husband David. She strives to enhance her family's self-reliance through solar energy, gardening, food preservation, raising heritage poultry, blacksmithing, and other traditional skills. Victoria is the author of Pure Poultry: Living Well with Heritage Chickens, Turkeys and Ducks.

(Note: this book was sent to me for review, in PDF format, prior to release. I merited the books review based on content, NOT electronic delivery or ebook format. To do so would be like reviewing a chef's food based on the clumsiness of the waitress. That said, read on...) Making your own distilled spirits has been a largely ignored area in the DIY market, and not since Prohibition has there been serious interest in à œhomebrewed hoochâ • until now. With local microbreweries and wineries popping up everywhere, it was only a matter of time until peopleâ ™s interest turned to the harder liquors, the fine spirits market, and a surge of enthusiasm for home distilling. Indulging that hobby, however, is not easy. It requires a still, fire, is illegal to do in some states, and is a gray area with very little good informationâ |at least until Victoria Redhed Millerâ ™s latest book, Craft Distilling: Making Liquor Legally at Home hit the bookstores. So, how does one make a smooth dark rum, a single malt scotch, or a kickinâ ™ tequila without poisoning yourself or blowing up your house in a still explosion? Miller, an avid do-it-yourselfer, went on the quest to answer those questions and documented the entire process, soup to nuts; all her hard work has made for an exceptional book that anyone can use to make the booze of their dreams. Miller begins with a short history lesson on the à œwhatâ • and à œwhyâ • of liquor and liquor law (while making a most excellent case for Federal legalization of home distilling), but quickly progresses into the à œhowâ • of still construction and operation.
